

TOMODE ANNOUNCE EUROPEAN TOUR 2027

Stockholm duo Tomode will take their bittersweet Scandinavian disco across Europe in March 2027 on the ‘We Missed It While It Happened’ Tour, with ten shows in Sweden, Denmark, Germany, the Netherlands, France and the UK.

Viktor Westerberg and Carl Leanderson of Tomode will return to the European stage in March 2027 for a ten-date tour, bringing their five-piece live show to venues across the continent. The tour follows the duo’s acclaimed 2025 run, which included a sold-out hometown show in Stockholm and performances at Berghain in Berlin and Paradiso in Amsterdam.

Known for pairing shimmering disco grooves with a distinctly Swedish melancholy, Tomode make music for dancing through life’s highs and lows. Their debut album Existential Disco (2024) earned recognition from Rolling Stone France, who described the duo as the “new wave of Swedish disco”. Since then, they have continued to develop their existential take on the dance floor, balancing euphoric arrangements with an unflinching look at the messier parts of being human.

The upcoming tour arrives alongside the release of Tomode’s second album, We Missed It While It Happened, due in February 2027. The record features Swedish singer-songwriter Amanda Bergman, alongside musicians Petter Winnberg and Nils Törnqvist (Amason, Miike Snow). Its first single, “Honest” featuring Amanda Bergman, is out October 23.

The European Tour 2027 kicks off in Stockholm on March 5, before travelling through Gothenburg, Malmö, Copenhagen, Hamburg, Berlin, Utrecht, Paris and London, where the duo will close the run with two shows.
